The following day they went to the Shelton hotel, at Baba's invitation and spent about 20 minutes and Darwin says that it was like being in the presence of Christ -- beauty, love, radiance, just heavenly, a timeless stay in Baba's presence. One on one side of Baba, two on the other, and Darwin sat in front of Baba, right in front of his sacred foot. As Darwin was thinking that he would like to have a memento, Baba motioned to Chanji to get a rose, and to give the petals to the Shaws.

Because Darwin could see Baba's foot, he had the overwhelming urge to kiss his foot. Nobody seemed to notice, but after a while he drew Darwin over and kissed Darwin on the forehead. "Through love, you will come to see me as I really am."

Kitty takes over, telling something about the Stokes' house and the Baba house of NYC, some kind of proximity, and the tape ends abruptly. Only about three minutes of material.
